

SAFETY TOPIC OF THE MONTH: WORKPLACE SAFETY AT EVERY AGE

Today's workforce includes a broad scope of ages — and with it, an array of safety concerns affecting each age group in different ways. This is especially true in the municipal world, where a township or borough's payroll may include teenagers as seasonal lifeguards or camp counselors as well as octogenarians as custodians or crossing guards.

In this month's training guide, you'll find links to a variety of no-cost resources — from live training and on-demand webinars to articles, info sheets, and more — to help SMT members navigate the growing range of ages in the workforce, address safety considerations for both younger and older workers, and tackle these issues from a public-sector perspective.

TRAINING RESOURCE GUIDE

SMT has revamped our schedule of monthly training webinars to focus on a single workplace-safety topic each month, then connect our members to a range of educational resources on that subject.
